

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: INETRADIO LAUNCHES ELECTION CENTRAL 2012

Stamford, CT June 28, 2012 – iNetRadio, the free internet radio mobile app that gives users what they want when they want it, now offers the internet’s most comprehensive collection of political news, commentary, and updates.

2012 is possibly the most important and polarizing election year in U.S. history and iNetRadio’s Election Central gives users easy access to a complete selection of content from the top names in news to the most vocal micro-podcasters. All positions are thoroughly represented from one extreme to the other and everything in-between.

“Users will surely find what they want, whether they’re looking for the latest news about their candidate or an interactive program where they can speak their minds” notes Thomas Giger, who heads up political content for iNetRadio. “There’s everything from comfort content to opinions that will set the net on fire”.

A newly revamped menu system lets users find their selections easily whether they’re short form features or full length programs from liberal, general, or conservative sources.

iNetRadio users can also take a break from the political battleground with instant access to dozens of commercial free music channels plus the latest news, weather, sports, and virtually any online information or entertainment talk program. iNetRadio is the perfect internet radio station with continuous new and fresh content all combined on one app.
